

Memoir of an Unlikely Savior

To be a great lover, you have to shed your armor. To be a great writer, you have to shed your skin. Frank can't get past his writing instructor's words. He'd like to be both, but his autistic childhood, visual impairment, dismissive parents, and narcissistic brother prevent him from being either. Then on vacation in Hawaii, Frank has what feels like a paranormal experience on the Arizona Memorial that starts him down a path of psychological and spiritual self-discovery. In making the transitions from weird to respected, awkward to insightful, brainy to wise, his relationships with women shift from fearful to erotic, and through them doors open to unexpected opportunities with his writing. Lifting himself from the purgatory to which his past had banished him, he inadvertently helps free those he connects with from their own shadowed depths, making his story the Memoir of an Unlikely Savior.
