

Finding Your Way to Say Goodbye: Comfort for the Dying and Those Who Care for Them

Written by a person who has been comforting and counselling terminally ill people for years, this book offers guidance, support, and encouragement for both those who are approaching death as well as their families, friends, counselors, medical and hospice practitioners, and chaplains. Consisting of short chapters, each including a spiritual reflection, Smith moves the reader or caregiver from admitting that you know to finishing the race. Along the way comfort and guidance are offered on issues such as: Releasing Control, Dealing with Privacy, Crying, Partnering with Physicians, Embracing God, Expressing Anger, Forgiving, Reviewing Your Life, Making a Valid Will, Making Visitors Comfortable, Telling Your Stories, and Composing Your Goodbyes.
