EXCERPT
He stood there in the middle of the kitchen, looking at me. I felt my cheeks grow warm. His eyelids were heavy, his lips slightly parted. Why did you come back with me? His voice was low and thick. Why did you invite me? I looked right back at him. It was time to get what Id come for. He came forward haltingly, giving me time to have second thoughts. I should go home to Steve. Try to make things better. But it was too late. He stood inches in front of me. All I could think was how his aftershave didnt smell musky like Steves. He looked at me. I mean really looked. Like he was storing every detail away for future reference. Instead of making me self-conscious, it bewitched me. This was Joe looking me over, and he liked what he saw. When he cradled my face in his hands, I held my breath. He brought my lips to his and kissed me the way I wanted him to since Christmas. He tasted of coffee and cigarettes. Steve never tasted of anything. What started gently ended with him puffing air through his nose and filling my mouth with his tongue. He kissed the breath out of my lungs and I fought to keep up with him. That was the problem with tired old relationships - you never got to kiss like that anymore. I would have been happy to carry on that way, draping my arms around his neck and kissing like I did when I was seventeen, but Joe had other ideas. Reaching under my jogging top, he undid my bra and pulled everything off my top half.
