SECOND VOLUME OF THE BUDDHIST ESSENE GOSPEL OF JESUS THE NEW AGE ESSENE AND MAHA BODHI RENAISSANCE The Origin, The Importance And The Renaissance Of The Maha Bodhi Commentary On The Unknown Life of Jesus Christ Celebration Of The Marriage Disavowal Third Millenium Revision of Thomist Summa Theologica In Retrospective Epilogue Our Garden of Eden Findings And Vitarian Conclusions The Origin, The Importance And The Renaissance Of The Maha Bodhi Siddhartha Buddha, speaking of the Tathagatha Buddhas in the vast preceding ages among his Aryan people shows that in his time people had a record in the erudite sages of tens of thousands of years before him. As I intuitively sought to piece together an immense treasury of ancient legends about prehistoric culture, in my book on MYSTICAL ANTHROPOLOGY I began with the frugivorous Paradisian race of my Hyperborean kinfolk in the hoary past of approximately 100,000 years ago in a land of eternal springtime beyond the north wind. The people were ruled by Boreales or Boreas, so the Greeks tell us, from which their historians derived the name Hyperboreans, or beyond the north wind, just as the northern lights are called aurora borealis. From this aurean beginning of the cultural paradigm on our planet, we trace man to a sudden loss of his northern Paradise with its surviving inhabitants fleeing to then a forest covered region soon to be lost by the cutting down of the trees to plant grains in what now is called the Gobi desert in northeast Asia. Perhaps the sudden cold which anthropologists say froze mammoths with the grass they were eating still in their mouths, killed the warmth loving tree species also, but like the biblical flood it followed mans deviation from the frugivorous fare of juicy fruits and

succulent herbs to the reliance on winter stores of grains and other seasonal crops, animal wool or skins for clothing and ultimately flesh for food. This only gave impetus for a continuing syndrome from East Turkistan west and southward, to India, Arabia, Mesopotamia, Egypt, Europe and finally in North and South American deserts. We have already shown in the first volume on the Gospels Divine Mysteries, that A-Brahm is of a rebellious connotation from breaking with Brahminism, coming to Ur of the Chaldeas from the Himalayan mountains to the East, possibly being of a Nazarite Essene Code of Life, if not of direct Buddhist origins. Even the later Essenes, like Jesus himself when he went to India, found the Brahmins steadfast in their worship in human and animal sacrifices to redeem evil men from all sin. So when these Essene sages escaped from the Himalayan region in India, as often occurs, they were joined in their exodus by idealists swelling their ranks who sought freedom, but without the will and heart-felt impetus for steadfast practice. These escapists, like the numerous strict fruitarians that have joined me over the years, but in months or years, soon fell back to their old habits of flesh-eating and other worldly behavior. 1 T h e B u d d h i s t E s s e n e G o s p e l o f J e s u s This same pattern made for continuance of the cult of Vicarious Atonement among the Jewish invaders of Palestine and Egypt, in spite of having Essene pioneers leading them who held fast to their legend of Paradise in Genesis. Likewise, when the Aryan tribes first invaded India (Carbon 14 dating of about 3,000 B.C.) coming from North Central Asia, they too were come-along turn-coats who were originally inspired by prehistoric Tathagatha Buddhist teachings, but when their pioneering efforts grew difficult, they too had wearied and fell to violence and the evil ways of bestial survival as earth-born sensual men. In those Mystical Anthropology investigations we tell of the Greeks claiming the Hyperboreans had only one eye, were hairless and nimble like goats. Dr. Howard of Yale has shown that one in 40,000 births is a cyclop with one
