

The Travelers Calendar

In this stunning new collection-his first in five years-acclaimed poet Daniel Mark Epstein, whom Donald Hall praised for a vision as tortured and powerful as early Robert Lowell, returns at the top of his form with new and challenging visions. Epstein's finely meshed net gathers it all in: Ronald Reagan (On the Official Biography of Ronald Reagan), Houdini (Magic for Houdini), a son's first smile (The Code), and the execution of Timothy McVeigh (The Times: June 7, 2001). Once again this master of language and vivid imagery explores the nature of times passing and the triumphant power of the natural world-bringing into the fray the poets and history-makers of the past and present centuries. Epstein is that rare poet blessed with the capacity to register and record-as he does in The Solar Eclipse in the Luxembourg Gardens, ... the simultaneity/Of city, sun, moon and the human eye.
